

One of the problems with our epidemic of media consolidation is that those few big owners can, and do, impose their political and social biases on what used to be a fairly even-handed and open-minded media. This is what has happened at Sinclair Broadcasting. By the way, you can lump Hollinger, Int'l & Rupert Murdoch's holdings to that shameful group as well.

I don't expect the FCC to do anything about it because they have demonstrated a clear bias themselves. However, just because something is permitted doesn't make it right. Sinclair should be severely censured, both for this current political hate-speech and for its earlier censorship of the respected and professional Nightline program.
